McGregor and Lizzie Ewing Always Kept a Jug.

A HOLE WAS IN THE BREAST

Of the Corpse When It Was Examined. Death Might Have Been From Apoplexy, They Say—Alma Walters Said That the Tongue Did Not Protrude That Morning When She Saw Lizzie on the Back Porch—Expert Knowledge From Surgeons—A Question Many Times Repeated.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 27.—As the defense in the McGregor case puts forward the testimony at its command the public can plainly see that the attorneys are fighting hard for their client, but the weight of evidence is against them, and only a powerful effort to show that the body found was not the remains of Lizzie Ewing, or that she came to her death by other means than what can be adduced in the testimony of Alma Walters, will influence the jury. Every hour is now beginning to count, and every minute seems valuable to both sides. The defense is piling in evidence, and the prosecution is doing all it can to break down every word as it is uttered. All concerned are stretching forward toward the goal, each contestant for the favor of the jury putting forward his best efforts.

When the report of the News Review ceased yesterday afternoon Doctor Tarr had just been called to the stand. He gave a vast quantity of expert testimony, and among other things said that he had stated before the coroner that he believed the body came to death by strangulation, but he had since changed his mind. He was followed by Walter Denslow, who said that he was a medical student in Philadelphia, and was not in Wells-ville when the body in question was found. He was at the examination, however, but did not see Doctor Parke there. Witness helped make the examination, and saw not one mark of violence. He saw none on the neck except a break in the neck caused by straightening after it had been in the grave. Witness had seen decay spots on the breast, and there was a gash there. He assisted in making the examination and looked carefully at the scalp, but found no marks upon them. The exterior of the skull was also examined, and two marks were discovered. He was present when the head was cut off, and saw it severed from the body at the upper part of the neck. Upon cross-examination by Attorney Carey, the doctor said that he did not see any bruises on the left side of the scalp, although he looked carefully. He further testified that all his knowledge had been gained in college; he had not studied with a physician. He went to the examination with Dr. Tarr, and acknowledged that he had stated before the coroner that the body was so badly decayed that it was impossible to tell whether there were marks of violence. There might have been. I said before the coroner that the tongue was well out, indicating that death might have come from strangulation. Witness found that there was a gash in the breast three or four inches long, caused from moving the body. Witness was there when the body was stripped.

Carey—What was there other than a knife to cause that gash?
Witness—Manipulation.
Carey—Didn't the carpet protect it?
Witness—Yes. I could not tell whether the gash was made by a knife or not. There was nothing to distinguish it.
Doctor Holland said that he was present at the first examination, and Doctor Parke was not there when he arrived. The doctor said he was there five or ten minutes before the other medical men arrived, but believed that Doctor Parke went away with him. There was no particular difference between the appearance of the face and the body, and the witness did not cut the body. He stated on cross examination by Carey that he went to the examination out of curiosity. The color of the flesh was not uniform, the general color being a whitish yellow, with face, neck and chest a little whiter. He could see down to the abdominal regions, and noticed that the upper part of what was in sight was darker than the remainder. Witness testified that he said at the coroner's inquest that he believed strangulation was the cause of death. He saw marks on the skull, but did not see bruises on the scalp. In fact, he did not examine this last part of the body. He did say that the tongue would protrude because of the position in the grave, the head being so much lower than the body. Carey asked if a body five and a half feet long was buried in a grave three and a half feet long, would the tongue come out, but the witness did not know whether that would make any difference.

Carey—Would that not crowd the body so the mouth could not open?
Witness—I don't know.
Carey—How much would it require to hold the tongue in?
Witness—Not much.

Doctor McFarland was recalled and asked concerning the condition of the breast after the clothing had been removed by the witness, and replied that one side was very much decayed. In answer to the question if he had seen the gash he said: "Yes sir, in the way of decay." He thought the ravages of decay could easily be distinguished from the cut of a knife.

Doctor Rex said that he was acquainted with Lizzie Ewing, and was called frequently to see her. He was called three or four weeks before her disappearance, and at that time found her intoxicated. The last time he saw her she was very nervous, and her health was very much impaired. Witness told her that she was in a dangerous condition. He saw her at the American house, and she was not so much intoxicated as she was nervous. At that time she was in danger of apoplexy or alcoholic poison. He saw the marks on the skull, but was unable to tell whether they were marks of violence or not. After examination by a microscope he made up his mind that disease was the cause, judging from the appearance. Prosecutor Speaker cross examined, and found that the doctor was at the second examination at the request of the defense. Charley McGregor having asked him to go. He believed he attended Lizzie three or four weeks before her disappearance, and that was at the American house. To Attorney Smith he said he saw her on the evenings of June 15 and 16. There were no injuries on the face although it was very much flushed.

Doctor J. W. Hammond stated that he was acquainted with the accused, and with Mrs. Ewing. He saw her about three months prior to death, at which time she was drunk and vomiting, her face being very much flushed. He could not tell how much liquor she drank, but related that Lizzie and Jess had told him that they always had a half gallon and sometimes a gallon by their bedside, and they frequently drank that much. In answer to the question the doctor said that Lizzie was liable to death from apoplexy or alcoholic poisoning, and that condition would make her much more easily killed by violence, a blow on the head being sufficient to cause apoplexy. Any exertion might bring it about, but he did not remember that he had ever had a conversation with her about it.

William C. Frazier said he was a police officer, and was at the grave. The head was on one side jammed against the sewer pipe, and he knew there were no breaks in the neck when the body was moved from the grave. He saw Doctor Parke at Haugh's but did not hear him say anything. Witness saw no marks on the throat in spite of the fact that he examined it carefully. He did not see Doctor Parke make a careful investigation. The house, he said, was about 34 feet from the ground, and Connell's house was in full view. Upon cross-examination by Prosecutor Speaker, witness said that the left side of the head was near the sewer pipe. The four doctors had charge of the body, but the witness was there during the entire examination. The breast was intact when the clothing was removed, and he saw them take off the head. As soon as the doctors put their hands on the breast the flesh fell off.

Doctor Tarr said he believed all the scalp was there at the second examination, and the ligaments and muscles would naturally swell so that it would not cover the head. The head seemed large, but that was frequently the case in bodies of this sort. When asked if he knew of her having any disease, he said that she had syphilis in the chronic stage.

Doctor Rex knew Lizzie, he said, for 10 years, and knew that she drank liquor frequently. He did not know of her being intoxicated a short time before her disappearance, but she looked bad the last few months.

Doctor Hammond testified that he saw a jug more than once at the bedside of Lizzie, he had seen it there often the last year.

Doctor Moore said he had practiced in Lisbon for over 20 years, and he saw the skull in question in the office of Sheriff Lodge once yesterday, examining it very carefully. He saw two parallel marks that were smooth and had nothing particular connected with them. On the right side there were other marks which presented the appearance of being honeycombed. He believed that they were due directly to disease, as he noticed that smaller marks of this kind were all over the top of the head. They were due either to disease or post-mortem changes, as was another mark over the eye. The disease he believed was syphilis, but he did not think they were marks of violence made before death. The doctor could not say whether ecchymose marks were vital or not one year after death. The appearance of a person after death by strangulation showed the tongue and eye balls protruding, veins swollen, and hands clenched. Putrefaction changes would cause the tongue to protrude. Apoplexy, he said, was hemorrhage of the blood vessels of the brain, and the result was paralysis of the heart. The post-mortem appearance would show the face dark, lips large, while the tongue may swell and stick out. Alcoholism is the first cause of apoplexy, because whiskey congests the brain, and any slight exertion might cause an attack.

He said that the disease spoken of by Doctor Tarr was the second cause, as the action of the disease was the same as alcoholism.
Question—Suppose that a woman of 35, addicted to drink and living an immoral life, and had this disease, and suppose that during the last three months of her life she drank heavily, and that her face was flushed three days prior to death, and she was found dead with surroundings to indicate that she had been vomiting, what would you say caused death?
Doctor—I would not like to say unless I had examined the body. The witness again answered that from these facts he would say death was caused by apoplexy. He said that putrefaction would have gone so far that it would be impossible to attribute death to the ecchymose marks. He could not declare that a body bearing ecchymose marks had died from strangulation until after a careful examination of blood vessels and tissue of the neck. Attorney Carey cross examined, and the witness said that apoplexy was nothing more than congestion of the brain, and might be caused by external violence. He always inquired about that, as it was important, and a severe blow is not required. Carey here read from a medical work to show that apoplexy was not caused by alcohol, and the doctor said it was different from anything he had ever heard in that line. The tongue cannot protrude except from muscular action in life and putrefaction in death. The tongue may protrude in any form of death when the muscles contract.

Dr. John McCurdy, a Youngstown specialist, testified that he had paid particular attention to surgery for 28 years, and he had examined this skull with Doctors Moore and Hammond. He saw marks over the eye which ran to and affected both bones of the neck. It was hard to say what caused the marks on the head, but the blood vessels were simply the channels of blood vessels. He believed the marks over the eye were caused by syphilis, for when this disease appears it attacks the bone sooner or later, sometimes destructive, and sometimes slow. The bones are always affected in the last stage. Postmortem ecchymosis is the same as is always found on a body. It is hard to tell after death whether bruises were made before or after death. It would be impossible to tell 11 or 12 months after death whether ecchymose marks were vital or putrefactive. He could not say that a body with livid face and swollen head died from strangulation. After death from strangulation the doctor expected to find face livid, eyes protruding with glaring look and tongue out. In this case he would make a close examination of the body, see if the windpipe was closed at the top, and examine the brain, lungs, stomach, bowels, liver and heart. If the protrusion of the tongue was caused by strangulation, it would come out during the struggle. Apoplexy is a rupture of blood vessels. The vessels fill with blood and it remains there. Death may come in a moment or it may be delayed for hours.

Any habits tending to break down the nerves will cause apoplexy. Drunkenness was the first cause and syphilis the next, and were apt to attack blood vessels, unable to stand the abnormal pressure.

Question—Suppose a body was buried for 11 or 12 months, not in a coffin, and suppose it had a livid face, lips swollen, tongue protruding, and there were ecchymose marks upon it, what would you say caused death?
Doctor—I could not say.

Question—Suppose that a woman, 35 years of age, drank heavily, lead an immoral life and was afflicted with this disease in the third stage, had been found dead with her false teeth out, what would be the cause of death?
Doctor—Apoplexy.

Question—Suppose that the surroundings showed that she had vomited?
Doctor—It might be that she had choked, I have known many cases of that kind.

Mr. Carey succeeded in obtaining the information that the appearance of death from apoplexy and strangulation is very much the same. Marks might dim in a week, but it all depended on circumstances. A healthy body would last longer after sudden death than if the body was diseased, but sudden death would not preserve a diseased body.

Doctor Hammond was recalled and said that he examined the skull, and saw smooth marks all over the head, some of which were more conspicuous than others, and to his mind they were caused by the disease in question. He could not see how doctors could tell in that body that the veins of the nose were congested. Signs of strangulation were livid face, swollen lips, tongue and eyes protruding; apoplexy was caused by high living, drunkenness and the disease in question. If the tongue was out from strangulation it protruded at the time of death. To the question as to the cause of death, considering the evidence and circumstances, he answered that he believed it was apoplexy or whiskey. To Attorney Carey he said he would look further, and would say that if marks of violence were found it was violence that caused death. When the head is diseased it requires only a slight blow to kill. Swollen lips were an indication of strangulation.

Carey—Suppose you found every indication of strangulation except swollen lips, would you say that death was from some other cause?
Doctor—No, I would not.

Carey—Would you say that this body exhumed 11 or 12 months after burial had died from apoplexy?
Doctor—I would not.

Mamie Tatton was placed on the stand, and said she knew Lizzie Ewing nine months, and saw her drunk many times. She was at Morrison's when Lizzie came that night, and witness said she talked as though her tongue was swollen.

Carey—Her tongue was thick, wasn't it?
Mamie—Yes it was.

Alma Walters was called for cross examination and said: "When I discovered Lizzie on the back porch that morning her tongue was not out." In response to the question of Prosecutor Speaker she said that the mouth was shut, the lips looked swollen. "I observed that the hand on the porch was straightened out as was the one on her breast."

Doctor Moore was called again, and said that the fact that diseased talked as though her tongue was swollen confirmed his opinion that she died of apoplexy.

The same question was asked Doctor Hammond, and said that it undoubtedly confirmed his opinion of apoplexy. To Carey he said that this did not settle it in his mind, but it was another circumstance.

Dr. Rex could not see how it was possible for doctors to say that ecchymose marks were vital 11 or 12 months after the body had been buried. Apoplexy could come from drunkenness or from syphilis. To the old question about the cause of death in the circumstances so often named this morning he said it was his opinion that deceased came to her death from apoplexy. Carey cross examined, and the doctor said that he would say death was from violence if he found marks to substantiate that belief. Attorney Anderson here offered in evidence some testimony given by William Cheattle. It was that part when he said he had been in the house two hours, or more after Lizzie came in that night.

Doctor McFarland said he saw the body taken up, and he could not say whether the spots came before or after death. To the question as to the cause of death, he answered: "Probably apoplexy." To Carey he said that violent injury caused apoplexy, and the severity of the blow depends on the person, "some people's skulls are thicker than others."

Doctor Holland said, in answer to the question of death, that whiskey or apoplexy was the cause. He said the cause of apoplexy was drunkenness, syphilis or hereditary tendencies. Doctor Tarr recalled some more of the scalp, repeating what he said this morning, and Doctor McCurdy was recalled by the court. The question asked was that if a few hours before death she had a halt in her speech and talked thick, would it confirm his opinion.

Doctor—It would do a great deal. I once knew a case of apoplexy where the man could not speak properly for hours before death. In answer to Carey he said that if the tongue was thick it would attend intoxication, but really had nothing to do with it. It did not mean much.

IT IS ENDED.

The Witnesses Have All Been Discharged.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 27.—When court convened this afternoon at 1 o'clock, the defense rested its case, and an opportunity was given the prosecution to move in rebuttal. Prosecutor Speaker said that the state had nothing to say, and its testimony was all in. The court then excused all the witnesses, and for a few minutes there was the bustle attending such occasions as the attorneys and spectators settled themselves to hear the arguments. Attorney Carey opened for the prosecution, talking in a rapid, yet earnest way. He reviewed the case, starting from the time when the accused and deceased became intimate. The speaker gradually warmed to the task, speaking so that all could easily hear what he had to say, and covering the case through its entirety.

He spoke eloquently, using the testimony of Cheattle and Alma Walters effectively. He had some respect for the man who would meet an opponent in the field, and taking the law in his hands, strike him down, but he had none for a man who would assassinate a woman.

Hon. R. W. Taylor is now talking, and will likely consume the greater part of the afternoon. Mr. Anderson will start tomorrow morning, being followed by Prosecutor Speaker. The judge will charge the jury, and they will likely get the case at noon.

SPEECHES OF STRENGTH.

What the Arguments in the McGregor Case Will Be.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 27.—When the arguments in the McGregor case are over some of the best ever heard in the courthouse will have been made. All the attorneys are preparing for the event, and keeping close watch upon the testimony as it is given in. Attorney Anderson will make a characteristic appeal, in which all the power and ability of his well-trained mind will be brought into play. Attorneys Smith and R. W. Taylor will also appear for their client, while Prosecutor Speaker will do his best in the statement he will put forward.

A Coming Wedding.

The New York Tribune of Sunday last contains the following:

"The marriage of Mrs. Ida S. Knowles, daughter of the late Captain J. T. Stockdale, of Pittsburg, to Miles A. Stafford, of this city, will take place on Dec. 19 at the home of the bride, No. 478 West End avenue. The ceremony will be quietly performed, and only the nearest relatives are to be present. Mrs. Knowles, who has lived in New York for three or four years, was prominent in social circles in Pittsburg. A trip south, a reception to friends, and later an extended trip abroad are part of the post-nuptial program."

Adding Another Kilo.

The Thompson Pottery Kiln are arranging for the construction of another kiln. It will be used in connection with the manufacture of their own saggers and will be started in the near future. To the present time the concern have been buying the saggers from outside companies.

Very Ill.

John McGraw, one of the pioneer residents, is dangerously ill at his home at Dry Run, and his son Will, who was summoned from Colorado, has arrived at his bedside. His death is momentarily expected.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., TUESDAY, NOV. 27

For President, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, Of Ohio.

You get the news in the NEWS REVIEW.

THE English putting trade is booming, and the boom is caused by the demand for English ware in this country, made possible by the promise which Senator Smith failed to carry out.

When congress meets President Cleveland proposes to tell the representatives of the people just what they should do to solidify the financial standing of the government. Who does not imagine that as in the tariff question it will be for revenue?

THERE is a whole volume for thought in the fact that 42,000 immigrants over 16 years of age were admitted to this country last year. It means that that number of ignorant and therefore dangerous people have been sent through the land to gain a livelihood as best they can. Perhaps congress will learn to pass laws after a while that will keep these people in the lands of their birth, where they by right belong.

Or all the wrongs done the American public by the present administration, none would be more insulting than the appointment of Professor W. L. Wilson to the supreme bench. The West Virginia attorney only practiced eleven years and has not been facing a court for the past twelve years. What a brilliant spectacle he would appear in the highest court of America, among jurists whose positions have been gained by hard work and the necessary qualifications.

SETTING UP IDOLS.

Some of the more venturesome politicians of the state are sitting up idols these days in the hope of securing the gubernatorial nomination for the man they favor or who they believe will be the winner in the long string of races after the prize now held by the next president. Many of the schemers are wasting valuable time, which might better be employed, for only one Republican can be governor of Ohio at one time. And while they indulge in their favorite little game they are creating breaks in the party which may not result in the voters being a unit for the candidate selected at the next convention. Already crevices have appeared in and around Hamilton county which threaten, by the aid of Democratic force, to spread in all directions, sending the dangerous cracks into the very campaign which will follow the selection of the standard bearer. The News Review does not believe in such work; it is opposed to any movement which has not for its end the greater glorification of Republicanism, and the elevation of eminent members of the party to office. There will be enough to fight when the Democrats gather some of their deluded brethren into that fold which knows more of the true Republicanism than the Jeffersonian doctrine ever imagined, and it is the enemy we should meet and not each other. Let the convention take care of itself. The delegates there assembled will do their duty to a man; will stand by the candidate who most deserves the honor. Stop this squabbling which has so suddenly arisen, and rebuke the few unfaithful who would disrupt the peace and order of the party for the sole purpose of gaining some personal advantage at the expense of the great mass of voters.

Notice.

Regular meeting of the Loyal Friends Insurance society Wednesday evening, Nov. 28, in lodge-room in Ferguson & Hill block. Meeting called for the purpose of initiating 100 new members. All are requested to be present at 8 o'clock sharp.

All of the armories in this city are under guard against a crowd of Kolb's followers that have come to this city from Perry, an adjoining county, who made a feeble attempt to gain possession of the armory stored therein, so that in case of an order to Montgomery the military would have no ammunition if necessary.

All of the armories in this city are under guard against a crowd of Kolb's followers that have come to this city from Perry, an adjoining county, who made a feeble attempt to gain possession of the armory stored therein, so that in case of an order to Montgomery the military would have no ammunition if necessary.

CHARLES A. MCKINLEY.

They Are Not Being Investigated by a Congressional Committee.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—The house sub-committee on judiciary, appointed to investigate the charge brought by the Central Labor union against United States Judge Augustus J. Ricks, is in session in the federal building here. The sub-committee consists of Representative Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, as chairman, Hon. Edward Lane of Illinois, and the Hon. Case Broderick of Kansas.

The Central Labor union is represented before the committee by the Hon. Arnold Green, while Judge Ricks is represented by Hon. Virgil P. Kline, Judge S. S. Williams, Judge Sanders and Mr. Andrew Squire.

The charge made by the Central Labor union is that, while acting in the capacity of special examiner in some 40 patent cases, he failed to turn over about $1,500 in fees belonging to the government. It is alleged that after Ricks was appointed United States judge he approved his own accounts as special examiner in these cases.

The session was opened by Hon. Arnold Green for the prosecution, who read the charge made by the labor union. Hon. Virgil P. Kline replied for the defendant at length. He stated that Judge Ricks had in 1893 made a full report of the matter at issue and had received assurances from the department of justice that his statement was satisfactory and his accounts correct.

Hon. Arnold Green, for the prosecution, admitted that Judge Ricks had rendered the report as stated, but that he did not do so until ten years after the fees had been collected. He charged that Judge Ricks had only made his corrected report and remitted the fees at that late time to avoid any possible scandal. He said that Judge Ricks had received information in 1897 warning him that the matter would be investigated and that his supplemental report was made under this pressure to cover any discrepancies which might exist.

More Distressing News Concerning Armenian Massacres.

CARNAGE STENCH CAUSES CHOLERA

Twenty-five to Thirty-Five Persons Being Carried Off Daily—The Turks' Victims Number Between 8,000 and 10,000. Meeting of Citizens in Boston.

Boston, Nov. 27.—Further information relative to the massacre of the Armenians near Bitlis, Turkey, has been received by Secretary Gulian of the United Friends of Armenia. One letter dated Bitlis, Sept. 26, gives the information that news has been received from the region back of Mosul that 43 villages are said to have been wholly blotted out.

Another letter dated Bitlis, Oct. 3, 1914, states that the day previous a letter from Mosul had been received which told of the outbreak of a virulent form of cholera, which was killing from 25 to 35 persons daily. It is caused, it is said, by the stench of carnage which has taken place not far back in the mountains. The number of massacred will reach between 8,000 and 10,000. The government tried to get the people here to sign a petition to the sovereign, expressing satisfaction with his rule, and disclaiming sympathy with the Armenians, but they have refused to sign the address.

Another letter dated Constantinople, Oct. 31, states that from information received from Bitlis, 27 villages have been annihilated in Sassun, and 6,000 men, women and children have been massacred by the troops and Kurds. The massacre occurred in the early part of September.

THE ARMENIAN MASSACRE.

Boston Citizens Ask the President to Intervene in the Matter.

Boston, Nov. 27.—An audience which crowded "The Cradle of Liberty" to the doors, made up mostly of Armenians, but with a large number of Americans, gathered at Fenial hall last night to hold an indignation meeting over the recent atrocious treatment of Armenians by representatives of the Turkish government. Among the speakers were many representative Massachusetts citizens, as well as leading clergymen of Boston.

Rev. S. J. Barrows, editor of The Christian Register, presided. With him upon the platform were Governor Greenhalge, Miss Julia Ward Howe, Hon. William Lloyd Garrison, Rev. Francis E. Clark, Rev. Thomas H. Van Ness of Boston, Dr. Samuel F. Gubart of Cambridge and Colonel Albert Clark, secretary of the Massachusetts Home Market club, all of whom made addresses, which were received with great applause.

The resolutions adopted recite that whereas it was the report of an American commission of inquiry that first convinced Mr. Gladstone of the truth of the Bulgarian atrocities, the meeting "does earnestly petition President Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, to instruct our minister at Constantinople to investigate this matter by sending to the spot such persons as he may see fit, or by sending in a commission sent by the United European powers."

The resolutions proceed with an appeal to the signatory powers, and especially Great Britain, for the immediate enforcement of the sixty-first article of the treaty of Berlin.

Keeping American Papers Out.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27.—The recent edict calling for the seizure at the frontier of foreign newspapers containing accounts of the Armenian massacres, prohibits the entry for every American newspaper into Turkey. This action on the part of the Turkish government is supposed to be due to the attitude assumed by the American press on the Armenian question.

Prepared for Suicide.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—From certain facts adduced there can be little doubt that Frederick R. Baker, the accomplice of Bookkeeper Samuel Seely, who stole $54,000 from the Shoen and Leather national bank, had planned to commit suicide sometime ago. When his box at the Park national bank was examined it was found no later than October 4 last Mr. Baker had taken out policies for $20,000 in different companies. It was found that these policies were incontestable, additional premium of $100 each being paid to make them so. The two policies were made payable to Baker's wife, and the officials of one insurance company have made practical admission that he was not rendered invalid because of suicide.

The Hearing This Afternoon.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 27.—Governor Pattis declined to grant a requisition on Governor Flower for the return of George M. Irwin, manager of the Pittsburgh descriptive pool, now under arrest in New York, into the custody of the Allegheny county authorities. ### ADDICKS' SENATORIAL CHANCES.

They May Be Blasted by His Wife's Divorce Suit.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—The news that Mrs. J. Edward Addicks has begun suit for divorce from her husband, will undoubtedly create a sensation in social and business circles in New York, Boston and Newport, as well as Philadelphia, where both Mr. and Mrs. Addicks are well known. Mrs. Addicks' step-daughter takes her side of it.

Although living most of the time in different parts of the country, Mr. Addicks has for 18 years claimed Claymont, Del., a small town just over the Pennsylvania line, about ten miles north of Wilmington, as his home, and has voted there. He has, however, always lived a portion of each year at his handsome country seat at Claymont. Adjoining the Addicks place is the magnificent estate of Mrs. Ida Carr Wilson, who is named by Mrs. Addicks as the co-respondent in the case.

What effect the action of Mrs. Addicks will have upon the senatorial aspirations of her husband can only be conjectured. Up to the present time all signs have pointed to Mr. Addicks as the successor of Anthony Higgins in the United States senate. The legislature of Delaware will elect a senator on Jan. 15. The divorce case will be referred to a commissioner who will take the testimony in private and until he files his matter in court it is not likely that much will be known of the allegations of Mrs. Addicks and the testimony she has to support them.

A Dinner to Dr. Parkhurst.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—A dinner will be given to the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst by the City Vigilance league at Madison avenue and Fifty-ninth street, in recognition of his services in behalf of the city. Choate, Bishop Potter, John W. Goff, Senator Lexow, Senator Bradley, Senator Saxton and Mayor-elect Strong.

War Lessons in Hanging.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 27.—Marshal Gaines has received a letter from Marshal Otto Femiller of Deadwood, N. D., asking for pointers on how to hang a man. He wants to know if there are any rules relative to the thickness and quality of the rope used. He concludes by saying that if Marshal Gaines will reply he will reciprocate at some future time. He is to hang an Indian on Dec. 28.

Resumption and Reduction.

The employees of the Lehigh Zinc and Iron works, to the number of 400, have been notified of a reduction of 10 per cent in wages after Dec. 1. Every employee receiving more than $1 per day is affected.

General Booth in Minneapolis.

Doctor Lawrence Howard.

We understand that this wonder worker treated Christian Wetzel, who has lived in East Liverpool for the past seven years, in a crippled condition, and W. F. Haney of Wellsville, 1307 Center street, the last named sufferer going on crutches for the past five years, and he has now thrown the crutches aside, after but two treatments by Doctor Howard. Here is a grand opportunity for cripples, or those afflicted with paralysis or rheumatism. Doctor Howard can be seen at the Grand Hotel, where he will do for the unfortunate that which he promises, and thus render them happy.

The Life Guard.

The presentation of the "Life Guard" at the Grand last night was well received by a small audience, and although the title has little or nothing to do with the play, it merited applause several times. Joseph J. Dowling as Captain Jack Wallingford, and Myra L. Davis as Drift, were favorites. Charles Phillips as Ash Tuesday, proved an ideal negro. The balance of the cast were not above the ordinary but succeeded in pleasing the audience. A few more specialties are needed to make the play a complete success, as the singing, what little was done, was decidedly poor.

Found the Boy in Liverpool.

A New Brighton special is responsible for the following:
"Harry Walsh, aged 16, mysteriously disappeared from his home here on September 23, since which time nothing has been heard from him. An advertisement was recently inserted in the Pittsburg and local papers, which brought word Friday that the runaway lad is at East Liverpool, where he went when he left home, and where he remained."

An Expression of Thanks.

The Republican state executive committee have sent to the Republican papers of Ohio a letter of thanks for the good work done in the late campaign, explaining that while the speakers arouse enthusiasm, it is the press which serves as the great educator and on its reliance must be placed. The committee realizes the good done by the press, and publicly thanks all Republican papers for the important part they played.

Burglars in a Pottery.

Last night some unknown thief entered the Croxall pottery, stole a file from the bench of James Byland, one of the jiggersmen, and proceeded to pry open the front window of the office. An entrance was effected and the combination on the safe tampered with. The burglar or burglars did not succeed in opening the safe but spoiled the combination until the owners could not open it when they tried it this morning.

The M. P. Church.

This church is being beautified in nice shape, the frescoing receiving special attention in the main audience room, while painters are rushing matters in other departments. The vocal and instrumental concert on Thanksgiving night will be a genuine treat, free to all who desire to attend, and you will be cordially welcomed. A full corps of willing volunteers were busily engaged in cleaning up today.

Evangelistic Services.

Reverend McMichael, of Cleveland, who is conducting evangelistic services this week in the United Presbyterian church, assisted by the pastor, is spoken of in terms of warm praise by those who have been so fortunate as to listen to him. Good audiences are in attendance. You have a cordial invitation to these services.

Morrison's "Faust."

The singing of the church choir of Nuremberg as heard in the Morrison production of Faust is of the best. A company of carefully selected singers is carried especially for this purpose. Faust will be at the Grand tomorrow evening, and you should not miss the production.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

They Make the Tallest Night of the Year In a Newspaper Office.

There is one night in every year in every great newspaper office when work is done that is the least understood of all that goes on in the making of a daily paper, one night when the highest state of fever attends the excitement and strain of the most intense work that falls to the lot of any men, except soldiers in war. That is election night. That is the night when a few men sit down at 6 o'clock before virgin sheets of paper, with the knowledge that before 2 o'clock the next morning they must cover those sheets with the election returns of a nation, digesting mountains of figures and apprising the public of the results in the most condensed forms, weeks in advance of the official announcements, as sparks might be counted while they fly from the shapeless iron on a blacksmith's anvil. And these calculations must stand the test of comparison with those which the rival newspapers, working without collaboration, as eager competitors, will publish at the same moment.

The election figures come in dribbles and atoms and must be put together as the Florentines make their mosaics. Some of it, we shall see, is plucked from the very air—as a magician seems to collect coins in a borrowed hat—begotten of reasoning, but put down beside the genuine returns with equal confidence and almost accuracy.

Ah, but that is a work to try cool heads and strong nerves. I am quite certain no other men in the world include such a night of tension and excitement, periodically, as a fixed part of a workaday existence. No other men, regularly once a year, feel themselves so truly in the focus of an intense public interest, manifesting itself in so many ways.—Scribner's.

WEIGH WITH THEIR EYES.

Expert Dealers in Live Stock Do Not Often Use Scales.

The dealers in live stock who buy and sell the thousands of cattle, hogs and sheep which are daily handled at the Bourbon stockyards must be expert in guessing the weight of a live animal at a glance. In conversation with a well known stockman a few days ago he explained why this is necessary:

"It would be impossible to weigh the cattle in many cases because of the immense labor involved, and the length of time it would take, while the market price, which is subject to constant fluctuations, might easily vary from its highest to its lowest limit while we were weighing the animals in one of our big scales. For instance, today, which has been the biggest day of the year thus far, there have been received at the Bourbon yards over 2,400 head of cattle and about 6,000 hogs. Suppose we had to drive all of those upon the scales to ascertain their weight? There are dozens of old stock men who can inspect a herd of animals and form an estimate of their average weight which will be readily accepted by purchasers as the basis of a trade.

"In a test case which was made some time since a man who has had a life-long experience in buying and selling a herd of cattle, after inspecting a herd of 500 animals, guessed their average weight within one-third of a pound of the actual figure ascertained by weighing the cattle individually. The feat was accomplished by Mr. Ben D. Offutt of this county and is not so extraordinary as it appears, because similar instances of expert 'guessing' occur here every day."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

For a Sweet Breath.

Don't expect to have clean teeth or a sweet breath while there is a tinge of white on the tongue. It is an unmistakable evidence of indigestion. Drink some lemonade, eat ripe fruit and green vegetables for purgatives, exercise freely, use plenty of water internally and externally, and keep up the treatment until the mouth is clean, healthy and red. Various things are suggested to counteract an unpleasant breath resulting from a bad tooth, wine or garlic scented dishes. Cinnamon, mint, creams,orris root, cloves, mastic resin and spruce gum will disguise some odors. Ten drops of tincture of myrrh in a glass of water will sweeten and refresh the mouth. A teaspoonful of spirits of camphor or peppermint in the same gargle is among the very best antiseptics, and a few drops of myrrh and camphor in the water are recommended in case of cold, throat trouble or any slight indisposition which may affect the breath.—Philadelphia Times.

The Parson's Rebuke.

A mean man invited the village preacher to dine with him, but placed before the preacher only a dish of greens and corn bread.

"Will you say grace, parson?" asked the host.

"I will," replied the parson. "Lord, make us thankful for greens and corn bread, and put it into the heart of our brother to raise hogs next year!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Made Bold by His Brush.

Detaille, the French painter whose studies are all of military life, looks every inch a soldier. He is tall, slender and has a martial air. Detaille knows absolutely nothing of the life of a soldier except what he has read. At the age of 20 he was rather timid, but his character began to change as soon as he devoted his brush to military subjects.

The name of Lake Ontario was first noted as Skanohiro (beautiful lake). It was also, at various times and by different men, denominated Lac de Frontenac, Lac de Iroquois, and Lac de St. Louis. The Mohawks called it Canadaraqui.

THE BETTER WAY.

Shall we fold the tiny garments
That our darling need to wear,
Lay aside the half worn dresses,
Put them all away with care?
Brooding over them long and often,
Bringing back our grief and pain,
Holding to our hearts our sorrow,
Living o'er our loss again?
Shall we do this while about us
By the hundreds everywhere,
Suffering for the help withheld,
There are children sweet and fair?
Children needing just the garments,
Dresses, skirts and half worn shoes—
Garments that our grief has hoarded,
Garments our hearts dread to lose?
Give them what our child once needed,
But no longer needs, we know,
She is clothed in lovely garments,
White and pure as drifted snow.
Helping lighten others' burdens,
We of use are to the race,
And we seem to see a glad smile
On our darling's happy face.

STORIES OF DR. HOLMES.

A Young Woman Who Didn't Like His Literary Taste.

The story is recalled of a young Virginia country girl dining in Boston some years ago, in the days when Dr. Holmes went to dinners. Seated next to her was a homely, little old gentleman whose name she did not catch. He began to talk with her and asked her how she passed her time in the country.

"Oh, we read, my father and I!" she said.

"And what do you read?" asked the little man.

"Well, the 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table' for one thing," she answered.

"I should think you would not care to read that more than once," remarked the little old man with a sign of disappointment in his tones.

"My father and I may not be judges of literature," said Miss Virginia airily and with a faint accent of scorn, "but when we get to the end of the 'Autocrat' we generally turn back to the beginning and read it over again."

The little old man smiled at this and was disposed to be friendly, but Miss Virginia was so displeased with his tone concerning the "Autocrat" that she met him with chilly indifference.

As soon as the guests went into the drawing room her hostess whispered reproachfully to her:

"You didn't seem to find Dr. Holmes as interesting as I hoped."

"Dr. Holmes!" shrieked Miss Virginia. There were a table and an explanation.

Another story of Holmes' wit is told. One day old Dr. Peabody was to meet him at a certain place. The venerable professor rode in a carriage. When he got there, he was met by Holmes, who had walked. Near by was a statue of Eurymedea. And Holmes said:

"Ah, you ride, I see!"

"Capital, capital!" cried Peabody.

That night he went back home and said to his wife:

"Holmes got off a good joke today."

His wife asked him what it was.

"Why, I was to meet him down at the statue of Eurymedea, and when I arrived, he said quite happily, 'Oh, you came in a carriage!'"

And then the genial professor wondered why his wife didn't laugh.

She Didn't Guess.

Like many other things, an alarm clock is a good thing when confined to its own sphere. But a young man who lives in Tioga had an experience with one the other day which, to say the least, was embarrassing. Being a heavy sleeper, it was not uncommon for him to miss his train to the city in the morning, so he resolved to invest in an alarm clock. One experience with it was enough, and that occurred while he was taking his purchase home. Walking through the train, he chanced to see a certain young lady sitting in a seat, the other half of which was unoccupied. The young man knew the young lady—in fact, he is said to have had entertained serious hopes before the alarm got in its little work. He sat down beside her, with his package in his lap, and smiled his sweetest. She asked him what he was taking home, and he playfully hid her guess. "Candy? Cigars? Neckties?" No, it was none of these. Just as she was about to venture a fourth guess there was a muffled sound from the interior of the package and then a loud clang that resounded weirdly through the car. The young man blushed, the young lady giggled, and the passengers roared. It seemed as though the thing would never stop, and it didn't until the disgusted youth hurried it to the other end of the car.—Philadelphia Record.
